

NYC Update 2

We had quite a long day today. We took off around 7:30 this morning and didn't get back home until after 9:30 this evening. Best count we had was over 500 meals served! We had some kids from a local High School helping us for lunch and a local church sent some volunteers for dinner. It was a lot of fun and everyone was getting used to each other. We really clicked for dinner. We were at the mission all day and not only served and cooked all that food, but we got everything prepped for tomorrow's outreach.

We're headed for Brooklyn tomorrow where we'll serve lunch to probably 150 while the Bowery will still be serving around 200 or so. After we get back we'll be cleaning out Mercy One and prepping for the next day. The day won't be as long because we won't be responsible for anything for dinner.

It's quite a challenge to do all of this, but we've been able to rise above the challenges, drawing on God's strength and all done a great job!! We added a team member for dinner, one leaves tomorrow, and three more show up! Taking it on the road will be quite a challenge, especially not to forget anything, so keep us in your prayers.
